

The Cleft Palate-Craniofacial Journal

ENGLISH LANGUAGE & COPYEDITING SERVICES

Manuscripts submitted to scholarly journals are sometimes rejected not on the basis of their science but because of poor readability. This is especially true of manuscripts submitted by non-native speakers of English. We encourage authors to ensure that their manuscripts are carefully edited for readability and correct use of the English language prior to submission.

There exist a number of professional language and copyediting services, some of which are listed below, that may be of assistance to you. Provision of these sources does not imply The Cleft Palate-Craniofacial Journal's endorsement of any individual or agency. Professional qualifications and compensation must be discussed directly with the editing service that you contact.

<http://www.internationalscienceediting.com/>

<http://www.asiascienceediting.com/>

<http://www.prof-editing.com>

<http://www.journalexperts.com>

In addition, The Cleft Palate-Craniofacial Journal offers complimentary English language assistance to authors as part of the revision process through volunteer members of the American Cleft Palate-Craniofacial Association. For free information about this service, please email the CPCJ Editorial Office at journal@acpa-cpf.org.